ORANGE JUDGE PUTS LAWYER IN JAIL IN CONTEMPT RULING ...

A Las Vegas judge this week ordered a deputy public defender to be placed in handcuffs and seated next to inmates in court, saying he wanted to teach her “a lesson” about courtroom etiquette. But legal experts say it’s the judge who may actually need a lesson in decorum. On Monday, an irritated Justice of the Peace Conrad Hafen told Clark County Deputy Public Defender Zohra Bakhtary to “be quiet” as she tried to defend her client and keep him from serving a six-month jail sentence ...

Under Florida law, a person has to be under arrest before the state, or perhaps a judge, can force her to take a breathalyzer test. Finally, the judge did not have authority to put the criminal defense attorney in jail initially. Since direct contempt proceedings had not officially started, there was no legal basis to put her in jail at that time. Only after a legitimate direct contempt hearing with notice and an opportunity to present and question witnesses can a judge put a lawyer in jail ...
