A Beginner's Guide to the Oboe - YouTube

The first step a student needs to take when selecting an oboe is to ask an experienced oboe player for help. Many oboe makers try to sell unacceptable instruments to students that don't know what they are doing. An experienced oboist can help determine if the instrument has any hope at all of being decent.

A beginner oboist requires a free blowing reed to help with the formation of their embouchure. Beginner oboists may through accident break their reeds and so the cheapness of these reeds makes the cost more reasonable. We recommend always having three oboe reeds at all times so that one breaks you always have another to play.

The oboe is not suited for every student and a good quality new student model instrument is a serious financial investment ($1,200-$2,500). Keep in mind that a student model oboe is good for learning the basics, but a good beginner will likely out grow a Student model oboe within two or three years.

The Rigoutat Delphine is my favourite beginner oboe and it's ideal for students with small hands. The Delphine is a lovely free-blowing instrument with a smooth, even tone and excellent tuning. It's made in France from quality materials, and has a finish that sets it apart from other student oboes in it's price range.

This beginner's guide to the sport's "art, equipment, and language" effectively takes the mystery out of sailing and its arcane vocabulary. Conner recommends boats on which to learn, defines sailing etiquette, offers weather analysis, and discusses sailing under adverse conditions and coping with emergencies. For those who couldn't get that ...

A C-key oboe is always the best for a beginner. The little tail c-key model is not an exception, and in this case, it is even better than most student oboe. If you are a style lover and you want to begin a process of learning the oboe, this is the best instrument for you. Crack is normal in oboes after a while, and they are enhanced by water.

The HB Student Oboe Reed ($16) is an excellent choice for beginning/intermediate oboists who use a "round" or "straight-line" embouchure. If your oboist's embouchure tends to look like a "smile," this may not be a good reed choice for you. I also like the reed style and consistency offered by Rose Reeds .
