The Hammond organ is an electric organ invented by Laurens Hammond and John M. Hanert and first manufactured in 1935. Various models have been produced, most of which use sliding drawbars to vary sounds. Until 1975, Hammond organs generated sound by creating an electric current from rotating a metal tonewheel near an electromagnetic pickup, and then strengthening the signal with an amplifier to drive a speaker cabinet. The organ is commonly used with the Leslie speaker. Around two million Hammon

An organ produces sound by blowing wind into wood and metal pipes. The pipes are held by wooden racks on top of chests. A chest is an airtight box that has small leather valves inside which let wind to the pipes when the organist presses keys at the console. The wind comes from a small centrifugal blower driven by an electric motor.
