edition by Say ...

With Tea with Milk Say returns to personal history, telling the story of his mother, brought up near San Francisco and uprooted after high school to return to her parents' Japanese homeland. In Say's book the young woman, Masako, feels out of place and foreign, but she soon meets a young man who prefers tea with milk, just as she does.

Bing: Tea With Milk Allen Say

With his characteristic subtlety, Say sets off his cultural metaphor from the very start, contrasting the green tea Masako has for breakfast in her home, with the "tea with milk and sugar" she drinks at her friends' houses in America.
